
The data in the figure are theoretical calculations, and each batch of products is different.